For bi-district championship game

Girl Eagles will meet Jefferson Tuesday Here

By BEELEE GOODWIN

For the eighth consecutive time, Canyon High School's Eaglettes have won the district 1-AAA championship. Playing before a standing-room-only crowd, the Eaglettes stormed past visiting Muleshoe 72-41.

In the previous outing between the two teams, the Canyon girls won by a close margin of 54-47. The Muleshoe defense had wrapped a zone defense around Eaglette standout Robena Johnson and were effective in slowing the leading Eaglette scorer.

The same kind of defensive tactics were used Friday night in an attempt to stop the playoff bound Canyon girls. This time it didn't work. By two-timing Miss Johnson, the Muleshoe guards had to leave either Louise Davis or Becky Williams open for the outside shot. The two then started sinking 20-foot baskets and forced the Muleshoe defense to leave their tight zone around Miss Johnson and come back outside.

Because of the effective outside shooting, Miss Johnson was able to garner high point honors with 30 points. Louise Davis and Becky Williams both had 14 for the night.

The shooting percentage of the Eaglettes was phenomenal with the all three starting forwards hitting over 60 percent. Miss Johnson connected at a clip of 65 per cent, Miss Davis shot 61 percent and Miss Williams was tops in percentage with 70 percent.

Defensively, Lisa Cathey led with a grade of +14. This was one of the best defensive performances of the year. According to Coach Bob Schneider's grading system for guards, a grade of +8 is considered excellent.

"This is, without doubt, the best coached girls basketball team and the best overall basketball program in the state of Texas," Muleshoe coach Bob Graves commented after the game. "If you try to cover Robena with a zone, they'll kill you from the outside. I don't think any team in the state can beat Canyon," Graves added.

Following the game Friday night, Schneider and CHS Athletic Director W. V. McAlpin met with officials from El Paso Jefferson High School, the Eaglettes' bi-district opponent, to determine where the playoff game was to be held. The coin was tossed and Canyon came out the winner. The game will be played in the CHS gym Tuesday evening. The exact time is not known at press time due to the boy's basketball game against Levelland scheduled for the same night.

The same two teams, Canyon and El Paso Jefferson, met last year at this time for the bi-district championship and Canyon came out on top by 20 points on their way to the state cham-

Lois Hull named outstanding citizen

A woman who is both mother and father to her children while taking an active part in many facets of the community, Mrs. Lois Hull became the sixth female in 20 years to be named Canyon's Citizen of the Year during the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Saturday night.

Mrs. Hull, currently chairman of the board for the South Randall County Hospital district and the mother of four children, was given the Outstanding Citizen award for 1974 for her service to the city.

The presentation came during the annual chamber banquet in the West Texas State University cafeteria before an audience of about 300 persons.

Dr. Heartsill Wilson of Denver, a speaker on human motivation, gave the keynote address at the banquet.

As chairman of the local hospital district, Mrs. Hull was leader of a several-years effort to finance and construct a new hospital for Canyon.

In February 1971, Mrs. Hull began her involvement in the hospital project when the directors of the Neblett Hospital Foundation selected her to act as temporary chairman of a proposed hospital district move.

Later that month Mrs. Hull traveled to Austin with legislation to propose to Randall County area legislators to create a hospital district for the southern two-thirds of the county. And, later in the month, she was elected president of the temporary district board.

When the legislation passed both houses of the legislature, Mrs. Hull was named president of the South Randall County Hospital Board.

Working with financial advisors and other board members, Mrs. Hull was instrumental in the planning which led to construction of a new hospital here in 1973. The Palo Duro Hospital opened its doors to receive patients in late January 1975.

While busy with the hospital planning and construction, Mrs. Hull has also been active in other facets of community life.

She is an ordained elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon and served on the executive building committee which planned and oversaw construction of a new half-million dollar church facility recently. Mrs. Hull is currently chairman of the Recreational and Fellowship Committee and has served as church hostess and chairman of the mission and strategy committee.

In addition, she has been a member of the church choir for 19 years.

Her interest in music is also evidenced by her leadership in the Canyon Community Concert Series and the Music Arts Association. She played Aunt Anna in the summer musical-drama production of "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon three years ago.

Mrs. Hull is also an active member of the University Study Club and has served as club president. She has been a member of the group since 1954. Under University Study Club sponsorship, Mrs. Hull has headed up the local Heart Drive in years past for the county.

She has served as second vice-president of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum Auxiliary.

A native of San Antonio, Mrs. Hull majored in English at the University of Texas. Her husband, Truitt Hull, who had been district attorney of Randall County, died in 1964. She has four children, Andy, 25; Chris, 21; Susan, 19; and Jonathan, 16.

During the banquet Saturday night, new Chamber President Weldon Trice was formally installed by outgoing president John Childs. New vice president is Cordell Huddleston and Lois Rice is new treasurer.

Mrs. Leon Gheer, president of the women's division of the chamber, introduced new officers for that organization for 1975. Retiring chairman is Mrs. Weldon Trice.

Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, president of WTSU, introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Wilson.

Wilson spoke on Stand Up, America.

With doors, windows and even whole walls gone, it appears workers at Canyon's First Baptist Church are in the process of demolition rather than just remodeling. Bricks are strewn around the church, which is undergoing a major face lift here. While construction continues, members of the church are meeting at Canyon Junior High School.

Dist. Atty. disavows brief at board head request

Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod, at the request of Randall County Board of School Trustees Chairman R.B. Gist Jr., contacted Texas Education Commissioner officials Friday to disavow any connection with a brief filed a week ago by an Amarillo attorney.

Sherrod's call to Austin followed a confusing series of events at mid-week after he and Gist learned Amarillo Attorney Bob Templeton had represented himself as attorney for the Randall County School Board in filing a brief with the commissioner of education, who is still considering a decision on an appeal by the Canyon School District.

Sherrod said he contacted the commissioner's legal staff to inform them that neither he nor any other representative of the county school board had authorized Templeton to file the brief, and that the county board disavows knowledge of the brief.

Sherrod had received on Thursday two letters from Templeton, one noting that he had mistakenly identified himself in signing the brief as the attorney for the county school board. The letter — to the education commissioner — noted that Templeton is attorney for five petitioners in South Amarillo who more than a year ago asked that their land and that of Developer Glenn O'Dell be annexed by the Amarillo School District. The other letter informed Sherrod that the mistake was due to secretarial error, but included a copy of the brief with Templeton's signature block changed to read "Attorney for the Petitioners," but with the remainder of the brief unaltered.

Filed as a "Brief on Behalf of the Randall County Board of School Trustees," the document sent Sherrod still included as its opening paragraph: "The Randall County Board of School Trustees, in support of their order detaching 176 acres from the Canyon Independent

Simpson, Sherman see hike as partial solution

Even though Texans will get another crack at providing pay raises for their legislators in an April constitutional amendment election, Canyon area legislators agree passage of the amendment would provide only a partial solution to the problem of salaries.

State Sen. Max Sherman and State Rep. Bob Simpson, both of Amarillo, said after returning from Austin Friday afternoon they would prefer to see a salary commission formed at the state level to set salaries.

Both houses of the legislature last week approved submitting to Texas voters an amendment to the current constitution which would increase salaries for senators and representatives from the current $4800 per year to $6000 per month or $7200 per year plus an increase in per diem allowances during legislative sessions from $18 to $30.

Simpson said if the pay raise passes, the increase would bring legislative salaries in line with the economic conditions which prevailed when the $4800 salary was first instituted in 1960. Legislators, then, he said, would be making a salary which is equal in buying power to the $4800 in 1960.

The increase in per diem pay, however, he said, would allow legislators to maintain housing in Austin during the legislative sessions and would allow them to meet their financial obligations while away from regular jobs.

While Simpson said the pay hike is "a lot better than what we make now," it is still woefully short of what it should be if Texans expect their legislators to devote full-time year-round to legislative duties.

He feels the Texas electorate does not desire that legislators spend full-time year-round on state business.

"If they (the electorate) expect us to average out, say, a half day — full-time during a session, but not that much out of session — I'm not sure if (the proposed raise) isn't adequate," he said.

Nevertheless, Simpson feels in the constitutional revision process which is expected to gain steam this legislative session attention should be given to establishment of a state salary commission.

Sherman agrees. He sees the salary increase proposed for legislators as only a partial solution (See HIKE, Page 4)

Board to eye AD/coach combo

Canyon school officials will recommend Monday night that the local school board seek a head coach/athletic director to replace the departing Coach Ron Mills.

The recommendation is only one of several the school district staff is expected to make to the board during its Monday night session.

Supt. Jerry Jacobs said he will recommend the board seek one man to act as athletic director and head coach. Currently, Canyon High School Assistant Principal W. V. McAlpin is athletic director. Ron Mills had served as head coach of the CHS Eagles for four years before turning in his resignation two weeks ago to take a similar position at Bay City.

The athletic program at the high school is also expected to be a focal point for discussion when several citizens meet with the board. Jacobs said Dr. A.J. Luquette of Canyon had requested time to speak to the board concerning suggested changes in the athletic program.

Walter Graham, a South Randall County rancher, is expected to announce Monday night whether he will seek re-election to the school board. He's served more than 20 years on the board.

Graham indicated during the most recent board meeting that he is undecided on whether to run again for the office.

Other items on the board agenda include a discussion on the investment of school funds. Business Manager Ron Woods spent a good portion of the board's last meeting discussing the budgetary reports computerized for the school staff's use.

Legislation pending or expected to be presented to the Texas Legislature now meeting in Austin will also be discussed. Board members have watched closely developments in Austin concerning future financing from the state for public education.

New start set Monday on funding

Canyon city commissioners will try Monday night to reconstruct a community development program for next year in an effort to receive funding through the federal department of Housing and Urban Development.

A meeting held in Amarillo last week with HUD officials poked holes in the city's initial proposals for funding under a HUD community development grand program, proposals which included money for hiring a community planner, money for aiding senior citizens and money for stepped-up code enforcement.

HUD officials put a damper on the program planned for Canyon in talks with Acting City Manager Tom Plumlee, who reported Tuesday that the federal agency had changed guidelines

Our World

People Sans Vision

By ANN BROWN

"What on earth has happened to our children?" has become a national wail.

Children from all walks of life have become amoral; they are shoplifters, drug addicts, and vandals. Naturally, children so occupied have no time or desire for constructive work.

The problem cuts across cultural, ethnic, racial, economic, and religious lines. Are children no longer products of their rearing?

We like to think the majority of our children are still clean and fine—and many of them are.

But when 75 per cent of the students in a high school composed of about 90 per cent middle class, Anglo-Saxons confess to having used drugs, and 10 out of 12 students in one class are so emotionally disturbed they cannot cope with their school work, it's difficult to blame the problems on "deprived minorities."

Human nature has not changed, so we have to believe children are still products of their rearing. How then do Godly parents rear children who are amoral atheists?

The big question is, "Who's doing the rearing?"

Perhaps good parents expect their children to catch their beliefs, morals, and values without ever having been exposed to them.

Fifty years ago, mothers stayed home with their children until they were 7 years old. They taught them precepts from the Bible, Aesop's fables, and Shakespeare.

Now whether they are at home or at the babysitter's, children usually learn from Sesame Street until they are 4 or 5 years old, then they go to school.

A veteran kindergarten teacher insists it takes her no more than 30 minutes to discern which children have been brought up on Sesame Street. She says they are totally lacking in constructive curiosity. They expect the teacher herself to supply instant answers to every question she asks.

Passive learning seldom produces productive learners.

Television producers are adamant that the violence, foul language, drinking, drugs, and blatant immorality displayed so prominently on TV screens has no influence on the young minds that drink it in about six hours of every day.

Would the same producers agree that the commercials wedged briefly between segments of the programs have no influence on the viewers?

Even on Bonanza and Gunsmoke, shows that take pride in maintaining high moral standards, they usually celebrate their victories, and drown their sorrows by having a beer.

The most prominent piece of furniture in almost every home setting is the bar. And at the end of the day, the "good" wife usually meets her husband at the door with his favorite drink in her hand.

Medical authorities agree alcohol is a most potent drug, and the one most frequently abused. With TV glamorizing it hour after hour, why shouldn't children find it attractive?

And with almost every program and commercial placing the primary emphasis on sex, how could children fail to make it the most important aspect of their lives.

The proponents of sordid movies, TV, and textbooks, defend their position by saying they are presenting life as it is.

Children learn about life as it is from experience. Not all children are exposed to alcohol, filth, and vulgarity; and those who are do not need books, TV, and movies to reinforce such evils.

If they are to have worthwhile goals to strive for, children need to be taught about life as it ought to be—not necessarily as it is.

Even unhappy children enjoy dreaming of a future filled with happiness and success. And many live to see their dreams come true. If they never build castles in the air, they are not likely to build them on the ground.

The NOW generation scorns air castles in favor of instant gratification.

"Without vision the people perish."

Mexican Food Meal Set Next Sunday Here

The annual Mexican or Roast Beef Dinner, sponsored by the Canyon Community Family Services will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. next Sunday, Feb. 23, at the Rex Reeves Elementary School cafeteria.

Tickets are now available from individuals or from Western Auto here for the annual fund-raising dinner to aid needy families in Canyon.

The Mexican food menu includes enchiladas, tacos, rice, beans, tossed salad, cake and coffee or tea.

Mrs. Carmen Hernandez of the community services organization said the annual dinner is being scheduled earlier in the year than previously because of an influx of families in the area to try to find work. She said funds are being rapidly depleted.

Last year, $600 was made from the Mexican dinner.

Rural Reform Is Paper Topic For WTSU Prof.

West Texas State University Head of Economics Barry Duman has published an article in the Intermountain Economic Review, Vol. 5, No. 2, for the fall, 1974.

"Agrarian Reform and Its Economic Impact in Chile in the Allende Years examines Allende's approach to agrarian reform and the successes and failures of the program," Duman says.

The article also discusses alternative approaches that might have been taken and the structure of the Chilean agriculture section," Duman continues.

Dr. Duman is a graduate of George Washington University and the University of Delaware. He received his doctorate from the University of Southern California in 1971.

He's Alive And Well

By CARROLL WILSON

An old and cherished friend, a fellow who's been around long enough to know better, has become what we called in the '60s a social drop-out, a mutual friend tells me.

How I remember those spring days when I was 15, maybe 16 years old, and a much older and wiser he and I would stroll unabashedly hand-in-hand into the future.

He was a good pal, someone to look to when the going got tough, when things looked bleak. I'll miss him.

I catch myself now thinking of him as dead, already gone. I must remind myself that he's just on the periphery, watching but no longer participating in society.

The news of his fate has disturbed me of late, I must repeat, not just because I assumed he'd always be there for me to lean on, but because it seemed natural that he would lead and I would follow.

I learned of his decision to drop out only in a casual conversation, although I'd expected there was something wrong for more than two years. He simply hasn't been his old self.

"I'm looking for Optimism," our mutual friend said one day as he strolled up to me on the square. "I've been looking for him for a couple of months now but he doesn't seem to be around anywhere. I looked in the drugstore and they said they hadn't seen him since the early '60s."

"I thought I'd seen him a couple of times here recently, but as I approached I could see it was only someone who looked like him. Funny, how that keeps happening, running into somebody who looks and walks like him, someone who only turns away with a smile as I call his name."

I told my friend that I too, worried, had tried to locate Optimism, but unsuccessfully.

A couple of days later our mutual friend called and excitedly told me he had finally found him.

"He's living alone in a little house in a Washington suburb and it took me some time but I tracked him down," the friend said.

"Funny," I said, "but I thought

I saw him the other night on television. The voice was odd, though, and the things he said were not as of old. I didn't think it was him."

"Couldn't have been," my friend said. "I knocked on the door to his house and, at first, I thought nobody was home. There was no answer, so I just kept pounding."

"Yeh," I said, "Optimism can be stubborn when he wants to. I remember back in the Depression when he wouldn't even go home at night to rest."

"Anyway," my friend continued, "I guess I finally made him so mad he came to the door and opened it just a crack, just enough to let me see him. He just looks terrible. His hair's long and matted and he hasn't shaved since I don't know when."

"So what'd he say?" I asked anxiously.

"He said he's been out a couple of times, during the night, when it was dark enough that most folks wouldn't recognize him. One time, back in August, he came out and enjoyed it so much that he thought he might stay out until daylight. He really felt good then, like maybe he'd like to drop back in."

"So what happened?"

"Things just didn't turn out right, I guess. He said he just didn't feel right. He wanted to go back home and shave and clean up, and by the time he'd done that he didn't feel like coming back out again. He mentioned something about the atmosphere and the fact that he doesn't have much money any more."

"He's always been too emotional about things," I said.

"He's really bugged. Says he's not coming out any more — not until 1976 anyway and then only to look around a little," the friend said.

"You reckon he'll ever come out for good," I said. "I'd sure like to see him again."

"I don't know," said my friend. "He's pretty gun-shy. Says he's tired of being used. He told me about a time he came out last fall, and he found this button that he thought was pretty nifty — said WIN on it — and he put it on and he was walking down the street and this dog came up and bit him on the leg without any warning at all."

"Maybe," I said hopefully, "maybe we could talk him into moving down here to the Panhandle. The rest of his family is here."

"I asked him that," said the friend. "He won't go for it. He says Washington is where he belongs and he's willing to wait until he feels like everything's okay again."

"But, we need him here," I said with emotion.

"You just can't reason with him," the friend said. "He says he won't budge for the next couple of years anyway. He just doesn't want to get dog-bit again. Said he's afraid he's passe, out of style now."

"Has he seen a doctor?" I asked.

"Saw one last week — a fellow named Jackson — and he felt fairly good for a little while. Then he started reading the Wall Street Journal again."

"Thanks," I said, hanging up the telephone receiver. "Optimism is alive and well in Washington!" I told my wife. "But, he's weary and sick in spirit and there's no one up there who even knows him."

Trashcan Lids Required Here

City Code Enforcement Officer Jerry Lehnich said as spring approaches he will begin enforcing a city ordinance which requires that residents have trash can lids on cans in their alleys.

Noting fly problems and stray dog problems with uncovered trashcans, Lehnich said he has received several complaints about the problem and will begin stricter enforcement.

Letters To The Editor

Idaho Woman Seeking Relatives

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter for Mrs. Allie Mae (Milstead) Williams and hope you will print it in your newspaper in the "Letters to the Editor" column. She lives in a nursing home here and asked me to write you.

Mrs. Williams has not seen her parents, who are dead now, or any of her family members for over forty years. The family was separated during the depression when she was five years old.

She is anxious to find some members of her family if they are still living. She knows very little about them but hopes some of your readers will be of some help in locating them.

Her older brother James Dillard Milstead was born somewhere in Texas in 1912; and a younger sister Velda Jean Milstead was born in Haskell, Texas in 1924. Some of the family are believed to have lived in Randall County at one time.

Allie Mae would appreciate very much hearing from anyone who knows anything about her brother or sister or their families.

Please make her days brighter and happier by writing her at the Evergreen Care Center, 63 So. Center, Rexburg, Idaho 83440.

Thank you for your interest and help.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Afton F. Parkinson

'Bus' Story Is Rapped

Mr. Martin,

A feature story on the front page with pictures yet that tends to work up sympathy for a couple of "unfortunate" boys who broke the law is not my way of trying to discourage crime, especially when crime is on the increase.

I have nothing against them as individuals, but I expect them as well as my own children to pay the penalty if they break the law.

Co. Treasurer To Meet With Commissioners

Randall County commissioners will meet with County Treasurer Bob McClen-don behind closed doors Monday to discuss the functioning of his office.

The newly-elected official was subject of some comment during commissioners' meeting last week when they learned he was not in his office to collect more than $9000 worth of fine and fee checks from other county officials.

Other items set for discussion Monday include final selection of the official county depository bank. Bids for the depository came only from Canyon First National Bank, which bid a rate higher than the going rate for U.S. Treasury notes.

County health officer will be appointed during the Monday meeting, as will a commissioner to serve on the board of the Amarillo Bi-City-County Health Unit.

A service agreement between the county tax office and Digital Equipment Corporation will also be eyed.

Commissioners will consider a resolution in support of the federal revenue sharing program and its extension for another multi-year period. The resolution, if okayed, will be sent Rep. Jack Hightower and Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen.

Commissioners meet at 1 p.m. in the Canyon courthouse.

India Slide Show

WT Baha'i Club will visit India Thursday, Feb. 20, at 8:00 p.m. way of an informal slide program presented by Dan Caldwell, former Peace Corps Volunteer in India.

The theme of the program is the "Face and Beauty of India" and will be shown in Room 214 of the WT Activities Center. It is open to the public.

Mr. Caldwell traveled quite extensively while on duty in India from 1969 to 1971 and his slides encompass the whole face and life of the land and its people. The program was planned and coordinated by the campus Baha'i Club during their regular meeting on February 13.

Officers of the WT Baha'i Club from the Canyon area are Becky Caldwell, Chairwoman and Teresa Haskin, Sec., both students at WT.

is preparing a motion for the regents to ratify action they took in illegal closed session during their December meeting. During that meeting, Board Chairman Cloyce K. Box of Dallas called the executive session prior to the regular board meeting. Notice of the executive session was not posted as required by state law.

Watkins said the board will meet in a "properly called" executive session during their Feb. 26 meeting to hear his report on the search for a dean of the school of business. Five candidates have been undergoing the interview process on campus in recent weeks for the position.

The university president said he does not anticipate a decision on the new dean before the May board meeting. The executive session will be called for him to report his feelings at this point to the board.

Regents are also expected to accept $960,000 from the state sale of bonds on ad valorem taxes. The funds will go into the building fund for the university and Watkins said they will help pay for construction of a new fine arts building as well as provide a cushion for other construction projects.

noting a number of mechanical failures.
The well is the second wildcat for Arkla in Randall County recently. Another well drilled west of Canyon turned up a dry hole. Plugging reports on the well, located on property owned by Henry Skypala, were filed in early January.

Last fall, drillers with Pan Eastern Exploration Co. of Oklahoma City plugged a wildcat gas well east of the Camp Don Harrington area, after turning up a dry hole.

The three wells are the first in five years in the county, even though oil companies have been busy purchasing oil and gas leases from local farmers.

School District and annexing same to the Amarillo

Independent School District, submits this brief that their order is correct and shows. . .

The brief concerns the contiguousness of the 165-acre tract which petitioners sought to have annexed by Amarillo to the Amarillo-Canyon school districts boundary line.

Gist met with Sherrod Thursday afternoon after meeting with County Judge Woody Pond, who is also ex officio county school superintendent. Pond had met with Sherrod early last week after learning of the brief's format.

The county board in November voted by a 3-2 margin to allow the 165-acre tract to be annexed by Amarillo. That decision was appealed to the commissioner of education by the Canyon school board. The appeal hearing was held in January in Austin before the commissioner's deputy.

In other developments last week, Canyon School Supt. Jerry Jacobs, after returning from a Wednesday trip to Austin, reported he still anticipates it will be another three to four weeks before a decision on the appeal is made.

He reported that officials in the commissioner's office were reluctant to give a date when the decision might be available.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Rick Wilcox made another effort on Thursday to hurry-up Texas Attorney General staff members in their decision-making process for a ruling on the procedure for the election of a county school trustee from an all-Amarillo precinct.

Amarillo accountant Don Marsh, who is apparently serving legally as a county trustee even though not elected in 1973, represents a precinct which lies wholly within the Amarillo School District. Under old law, residents of the precinct were not allowed to vote for Marsh or any candidate for the county board. Under new law, the procedure is clouded. District attorney officials last summer asked for an attorney general's opinion on election procedure for that precinct.

Only two weeks remain before the filing deadline for election to the county board. Marsh has not refiled for election.

tion to the problem, but wrapped up in that problem he says, is also the problem of whether the people of Texas want annual legislative sessions.

The salary increase, he believes is only a measure to bring legislative pay up to meet the rising costs of inflation.

"It's a temporary thing to acknowledge that costs have gone up," he said. "It's a partial answer at best, but it will be a little improvement at least."

The solution to the legislative pay problem as Sherman sees it is creation of a pay commission. Establishment of such a commission would be another three to mission was included both in the revision effort of the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission and the constitutional convention last summer.

Under the proposals, a commission consisting of laymen from throughout the state would evaluate the work done by legislators and recommend pay increases for them.

Sherman, too, believes the establishment of such a commission will be one of the issues when legislators in Austin begin this session to peruse the various methods of revising the state constitution.

for program funding.

In a memorandum to city Commissioners, Plumlee says the HUD officials told him there is little likelihood the program outlined for Canyon for next year would be approved.

"Under the guidelines, it is apparent that any project we undertake should be limited to areas such as street paving or water and sewer," he says. "The area of West Canyon will probably be the only (area) located within Canyon that could meet the funding criteria because of the absence of water city's sewage plant. The chamber is a requirement under federal Environmental Protection Agency guidelines.

The commissioners will also take their first formal look at the proposed 1975-76 budget for the city.

Commissioners meet at 7 p.m. in the Canyon community center.

public education are considered central issues in the legislative session and nearly a half dozen proposals for change have been discussed in the capital.

Jacobs, after previously reviewing the various proposals, has said implementation of any of them could mean a loss of state funds for the Canyon school district.

The board members are expected to take action to rehire the administrative and counseling staff of the school system. They met in executive session at their last meeting to discuss rehiring of the staff members.

An executive session is scheduled following Monday's meeting to consider rehiring the teaching staff.

The board meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the high school.

In the review, it was pointed out that the author indicates that during the first quarter of the twentieth century the welfare of the individual family was of prime concern, although the liberal attitude toward divorce (especially among the wealthy) is a foremost theme.

Fish Survey Taken Here

Two employees of the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife in Canyon conducted a survey involving the growth of fish that were stocked in Rita Blanca Lake at Dalhart during May, 1973. Using frame and gill nets, B. A. Bagwell and Kenny Conway caught approximately 100 trout and several largemouth bass. The survey showed the fish have fared well during the past two years. The trout ranged in length from 15 inches to 18 inches and weighed from one and three-fourths pounds to a top weight of two and three-fourths pounds. The bass taken averaged out at one and three-fourths pounds.

Alden Mann

Alden Mann To Retire Here

Alden Mann whose banking career spans almost a half century will be honored Tuesday with a retirement party which will also serve as an observance of the 8th anniversary of West Texas State Bank where he is a vice president.

Mann and his wife, Ruth, will be guests of honor at an open house at the bank during banking hours from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. A native of Persia, Ia., Mann grew up in Happy and was graduated from high school there in 1914.

The Manns moved from Iowa to the town without a frown in 1909 for his mother's health. Happy must have agreed with her, Mann observes.

"She was bedridden when we moved there and in two years she was doing her housework," he declared. "She lived to be 89 years old."

Alden went to Draughton's Business College in Amarillo after completing high school. There he had a smattering of business administration and went to work for Farmers' Grain Elevator in Happy after getting out of school. He later worked for a clothing store and then in 1926 started his banking career with First State Bank in Happy.

He had been married to Miss Ruth Walters of Happy about a month before. Hard times came and in 1931 the grain elevator where he had held his first job went into receivership. Mann operated the firm in receivership until 1936 and then returned to First State Bank.

He remained there until 1962 when he moved to Tulsa to become a vice president of Tulsa First National, a position he held until he joined forces with the group organizing West Texas State Bank here.

Alden had a stint of military duty during World War I but it wasn't very exciting. He was in the navy and was assigned to the USS Robertson, a four-stack destroyer which patrolled the northern Pacific on a fruitless search for German U-boats.

"The Germans whipped the Russians and US officials were afraid a German submarine base might be installed in Russia for an attack on the United States," Mann related.

"We didn't see a thing," he asserted.

Mann himself considers his career fairly uneventful but during that time he has seen the financial power of the area grow to gigantic proportions.

Mann says that when he returned to First State Bank in Happy as cashier in 1936 it had less than $100,000 in deposits. That figure grew to $2 million by the time he left the firm in 1952.

"Things were really bad during the depression," he remembers. "You couldn't go to the bank and borrow $1,000 because they just didn't have it."

Mann says banking is a great career for any young person to consider.

"But you'd better study business administration and some psychology," he admonished. "You can get it on the job but it might be very costly."

News Brief

Income tax help

Some losses are deductible

If you suffer a permanent loss in value of personal or business property you may be able to take a deduction for the loss on your U. S. income tax return.

Damage or destruction caused by such things as fire, storms, flood damage, car wrecks, vandalism, thefts and condemnation give rise to tax deductions. The loss must be due to an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected or unusual nature. A deduction is available to the extent that the loss exceeds insurance reimbursements.

The deduction for personal casualty loss is limited to the lower of cost or the fair market value of the property measured by the difference between the value immediately before and after the casualty. The amount of the loss must be reduced by any insurance proceeds and a $100 limitation. Casualty loss deduction for business property is determined in the same manner except that there is no $100 limitation.

In order to prove your loss you should be prepared to show the nature of the casualty and when it occurred, that you were the owner of the property, the cost of the property (evidenced by purchase contract, deed, etc.), depreciation, if any, the value before and after the casualty, and the amount of any insurance received. Photographs of the property before and after the casualty are often helpful in substantiating its condition and value.

This is an example of the information you can obtain by attending the "1975 Adult Teaching Texas Course" sponsored by the Panhandle Chapter of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service as a public service.

The two-night course on Thursday, Feb. 20, and Friday, Feb. 21, will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. at Room 207, University Complex South, West Texas State University, Canyon.

Instructors are volunteers from the Panhandle Chapter of C.P.A.'s, experienced in the preparation of tax returns. The IRS furnished the course material, "Your Federal Income Tax." The cost of the course is $1 per person and $1.50 per couple. Registrations must be made by Feb. 17 (see accompanying form).

Now Girls Are In FFA

A few years ago, the only time a girl was associated with the high school agriculture program was when she was elected FFA Sweetheart.

Times have changed and the male agriculture student at Canyon High School no longer has the exclusive rights to agriculture related studies.

There are eleven girls now enrolled in the agriculture programs at CHS. This number is a doubling of last year's enrollment.

"The girls take a backseat to no one," Lee Moore, CHS ag teacher said. "They are an asset to our organization and are making a place for themselves in today's agriculture," Moore added.

The girls weld, farm, and raise and show livestock and do everything the boys do, Moore said.

"We are one big family without conflict between boy and girl," Trina Hunter, a first year ag student and female said.

"The guys treat us just like other guys, they bring us in and accept us as one of the group," Connie Owens, another female FFA member added.

The reaction on the boy's side of the fence is essentially the same as the girl's point of view.

Gary Reynolds, a senior ag student said this about girls being members of FFA, "It's the best thing that's ever happened. It shows the people that FFA isn't just a bunch of pig farmers, you don't have to own a pig to be in FFA."

Roger Batenhorst noted that "the girls try harder than most of the guys in the ag programs."

Other female members of the FFA at CHS include Terri McGill, Melinda Richie, Karen Ritchie, Brenda Johnson, Sandy Nelson, Terry Lynn Thomas, Susie Reynolds, Karla Webster and Shirley O'Connor.

The agriculture teachers at CHS all agree on one thing — they would like to have more girls involved, and, according to Moore, "I think we probably will."

CHS Offers Feedlot Course

The feedlot management course at Canyon High School covers all phases of the feedlot industry.

Ronnie Hargrove, CHS ag teacher, begins his instruction with the preconditioning of cattle for the feedlot up through the actual marketing procedures.

The business end of the industry is taught as well as the feeding of livestock. The students learn bookkeeping and record keeping on feed, medicine, purchasing and buying. The students also learn about all types of buying.

Feed rations, growth rates, government regulations, and water control are just a few of the other things taught in the course.

The details for financing a feedlot are presented to the students. Where to go for money, who to see and how to approach a potential lender are some of the questions answered in the course.

Several field trips are taken by the students to related areas in the feedlot industry.

During the school year, each student draws up his own plans as to how they think a feedlot should be built. Every detail is in the plans including building costs, labor, material, salaries, etc.

The course prepares the student for possible feedlot employment after graduation. It allows the student to go to work with a general knowledge of the business and not having to go into the job blind.

About 2500 pianists and vocalists are expected to participate in the University Intercollegiate League Solo and Ensem-

Connie Owens, one of 11 girls in FFA, feels and is treated just like one of the guys. Shown above, Miss Owens grinds a piece of metal. According to instructors and fellow classmates, she also welds a pretty good bead.

Eagle Hopes Still Alive

The Canyon High School Eagles overcame a two point deficit at halftime and defeated the Muleshoe Mules 65-55 Friday night.

Trailing 37-35 at the halfway point, Canyon outscored Muleshoe 30-18. Three others hit the double figures for Canyon. Hoss Ratliff, Ken Cooper and James Walling were good for 12, 12 and 10 respectively.

John Johnson continued to display his jumping ability by snatching 19 rebounds off the boards, seven offensive and 13 defensive rebounds.

The district playoff hopes for the Canyon Eagles are still alive following the victory over Muleshoe.

First round conference winner Levelland fell to Perryton 57-55.

Classes Still Open

Classes in the Community Education program will remain open through this week according to Dr. Ken Hart, Director of Vocational Education at Canyon High School.

Courses open to the community range from needlepoint to powder puff mechanics.

Dr. Hart urges all interested citizens to contact him at Canyon High School or call 655-2168.

UMYF Group Has Election

Steve LaGrone has been elected president for the Junior High section of the United Methodist Youth Fellowship of the First United Methodist Church of Canyon.

Other officers elected were Kelly Irbeck, vice president, and Cindy Johnston, secretary treasurer.

Friday night, thus putting the race for the second round up for grabs.

Conference winner Levelland fell to Perryton 57-55 Friday night thus putting the race for the second round up for grabs.

Tuesday night the Eagles will face Levelland and the pressure will be on Coach B.B. Kendrick's crew as it is a must game.

If the Eagles beat Levelland and Dumas wins their game, a playoff for the second round will be played between Canyon and Dumas. If the Eagles win and Dumas loses, the Eagles will win the second go-round outright and will face Levelland again for the district title.

Lynn Wright, 44, lays in two of his high point total of 18 between two Muleshoe defenders. The second round district championship is still up for grabs after the 65-55 win over the Mules.

Rex Reynolds displays his skills on the drill press to classmate Don Ball. Working with metal is a major emphasis in the agriculture program at Canyon High School.

Shop: Important In Ag Training

Lee Moore, agriculture teacher at CHS, conducts three classes in the agriculture shop.

In the shop classes, students learn welding, metal cutting and the building of metal products.

Completed projects of the shop students include calf stalls, self-waterers, troughs and a large vat which is used for engine cleaning.

"We try to not only teach agriculture, but to teach proficiency in agriculture," Moore said.

The students are now in the process of renovating a livestock trailer.

According to Moore and his students, everyone enjoys the chance of getting out of the classroom and into the shop where they can utilize their skills in their metal creations.

Co-op Course Lets Students Go To Work

One phase of Canyon High School's agriculture department involves cooperative training for students.

The program is built around a half-school, half-work day. The student in the coop training, attends school for half a day and works the other half in some agriculture related area.

Richard Porter, CHS ag teacher, is the program's director.

The coop student must be at least 16 years of age and be classified as a junior or senior.

Students can enroll in cooperative training for one or two years.

This year, Porter's cooperative class numbers 19. The students' jobs vary. After school their work includes farm store sales, dairy work, hog marketing, farm equipment companies, training horses, greenhouse work, farming and assisting veterinarians.

Game. . .

pionship. According to Schneider, the upcoming playoff foe now stands 24-1 for the season with the Eaglettes standing undefeated with 32 wins. Jefferson will have three starters back from its 1974 team.

The Eaglette offense will have to contend with a six foot guard and the defense will have to stop two girls who are averaging 29 and 25 points per game this season.

When asked whether or not any game plan changes will be made for the bi-district class, Schneider said "we will work out just as we've been doing in the past and hope, through hard work, improve more."

"We're still taking one game at a time," So far this season the Canyon girls have amassed a total of 2292 points to the opponents total of 1310.

The 902 point difference can be credited to not only the powerhouse offense but to a defense that's been tenacious and aggressive to say the least.

The Eaglette Guards aren't too big, but the physical aggressiveness and quickness make up for the lack in size.

Defense isn't an exclusive right held by the guards. The forwards give opposing guards a little defense of their own when they try to get the ball to their offensive end of the court.

"Defense has always been a thing of pride in our program," Schneider said.

From here on out, when each game is a must game, it will take both defense and offense to win. The undefeated Eaglettes have proved they are strong in both. Now it's up to some team downstate to prove they are better.
